A note from Pastor Barry...

As we head into a time of year where the holidays are distinctly Christian, I want to challenge you to do a few things that may be normal practice for some and a challenge for others. First, be sure to make the season about Jesus. Invite Him into the conversation, whether it's with a friend, stranger, cashier, or family...don't be afraid to share the real reason for the holiday. Second, make it a point to participate in church activities surrounding Thanksgiving, Christmas and New Year. As we rebuild the church family it is important to spend time together. While we are not doing much at this point, we are being intentional with what we are doing. Please commit to being a part. Lastly, tell someone about the saving grace of our Lord and Savior! The Lord gives us great opportunity this time of year to share our own story of salvation and experience of grace during this season. Please be faithful in sharing. God Bless!
